PREDICTS GREATER SUCCESS IN GLAND GRAFT OPERATIONS

Dr. Voronoff Denied Right In Paris to Lecture Before Surgeons.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—Greater successes in the field of life-giving gland oper-ations are predicted by Dr. Serge Vo-ronoff, who developed the famous monkey-gland grafting process and now has discovered species of an-throphoid apes and chimpanzees possessing glands more closely res bling those of mankind than any that heretofore have been experimented with. The famous surgeon made this disclosure after he had been suddenly refused permission to speak and exhibit living testimonials and motion picture examples of his work before the International Congress of Surgery

Greet Ban With Hisses.

The sudden action of the president Mr. and Mrs. James virts, of the conference in barring Dr. Voro-dagement and approaching mar-riage of their daughter, Ruth Han-nah, to William Ham Iton Young, of Henderson, N. C. The wedding aged persons to youthful vigor. of the conference in barring Dr. Voroing aged persons to youthful vigor. They greeted the president's announce-ment with hisses and booing. The explanation given was that Dr. noff had victated professional ethics tients on hand. One of them, Arthur Evelyn Liardet, of London, is growing a new head of hair at the age of 76. He is, according to Dr. Voronoff. "vigorous and robust with an expres-Vood.

Siebert the graft is always subject to re-newal, thereby obtaining successive rejuvenations," he said.

Experiments on rams prove that fe can be prolonged by grafting. r. Voronoff continued, "and since there is hope of prolonging human life, the operation is, therefore, legitimate."

The difficulty of procuring human glands for grafting makes it neces sary to rely on the glands of mon-keys and related animals. Dr. Voronoff spurned the theory that glands of other animals might be The Dorothy Quincy Hancock simple and not at all dangerous.
